Right at the age of this decade, Faculty of Human Ecology (Fema), Bogor Agricultural University (IPB) has established itself to be more global. Fema sought to improve the quality of its civitas in English language. Together with Student Executive Board (BEM) of Fema and Arch ILP Cimanggu organized the Profiling Test in 11 and 28 March 2015.

This activity aimed to map the English skills of the academicians of Fema through the test in the aspects of listening and grammar. The result of the Profiling Test could be the basis for determining steps to improve their English skills.

Wednesday (11/3), the first Profiling Test was implemented in the Auditorium of GMSK Fema IPB followed by the participants from educators and the educational in the enviroment of Fema, covering Department of Community Nutrition, Department of Family and Consumer Sciences, and Department of Communication Science and Community Development.

The test for educators and educational was conducted in a single session which aimed to map the English skills. Going forward, the civitas of academicians of Fema especially lecturers were expected to be more active in the international forum post following the Profiling Test.

Saturday (28/3), the second day of this activity was carried out in the Auditorium Thoyib Hadiwijaya of Faculty of Agriculture (Faperta) IPB. The Profiling Test of the second day was followed by 525 students of Fema held in three sessions. The participants were the students of Fema of 49 and 50 classes. This was intended to enable them to prepare themselves to implement the Final Colloquium and Seminar in English.
